Rape, a Profitable Pasture.
(Weekly Agricultural Letter.)

There is no crop grown on the farm that produces such large amount of valuable pasture in so short a time as Rape. This plant comes to us from England where its use has been recognized for many years. When young and small it resembles somewhat the cabbage and turnip. It differs from these in having a thickened stem and thick succulent leaves.

The practical experiments in feeding this most valuable forage plant in this country indicate that one acre of Rape is more valuable for feeding sheep or hogs than one acre of clover, blue grass timothy, or any other common pasture plant. Some experiments have even indicated that rape may rival alfalfa itself as a pasture for hogs.

For feeding wethers and lambs rape has been used extensively at the Ontario Agricultural College, Wisconsin, Michigan and Missouri. At these stations rape pasture produced from 300 to 500 pounds of mutton per acre. At 5 cents a pound for mutton this would give rape pasture a value of $15.00 to $25.00 per acre. The results from grazing hogs on rape are even more favorable in some respects to this plant than the above.

At the Alabama station one acre of rape produced 512 pounds of pork, which at 5 cents a pound, would be worth $25.60. At the Wisconsin station rape compared with clover pasture showed 7 per cent advantage for rape in the amount of grain per 100 pounds of gain.

In every experiment grain has been fed with the pasture. Rape is not a successful pasture for hogs when grazed alone, without grain.

Rape has two advantages which may, or may not prove valuable according to the methods of handling. It sometimes causes bloat in sheep and cattle but is no more dangerous in this respect than a rank growth of green clover. Another objection to eating hogs on rape is that the hogs, particularly white hogs, blister badly in the summer in the hot sun. The latter difficulty has only been reported in a very few cases and can probably be easily prevented by turning hogs on rape only after the dew has dried off of the plants. Rape is planted either in rows or sown broadcast; the latter method is most common. It is important that rape be sown in Missouri at the earliest date at which the ground can be prepared. If sown broadcast prepare the land thoroughly as for oats and harrow in five pounds of seed per acre. If sown in rows use three pounds per acre, in rows three feet apart. This should be cultivated two or three times. Always sow the Dwarf Essex variety. In the writer's experience when sown broadcast the yield is considerably increased by sowing one bushel of oats per acre with the rape. When the oats have reached the milk stage the hogs or sheep should be turned on. Another way in which rape is sometimes sown is to sow thinly on oat land or wheat land in the spring; after the grain crop is harvested the rape furnishes an abundant pasture during the fall. It is also sown in corn at the last cultivation, and sometimes produces a valuable pasture when handled in this way. It can be pastured until the latest freezing frosts without injury to the animals.

Arizona's Ribbon of Silver.

To people who pass through Arizona on the train it seems all sand and cactus. But if they would follow its rivers they would know of the great ribbons of silver and green which redeem it from the name of desert. Phoenix and Tempe are garden spots of verdure, and for miles in every direction broad fields of alfalfa and shady rows of cottonwood show what irrigation can bring forth. The salt river valley is the richest in Arizona; but it is the ribbon of silver—Salt river—which wrought the miracle. Forty years ago the river was allowed to follow its own course, but now it is dammed and diverted and led away, spread out over the thirsty land, dumped up from its underflow and spread again. And when the people of Phoenix and Tempe have finished with it, the farmers down the river at Buckeye seize upon the underflow and use it again.—Dane Coolidge in Sunset Magazine for March.

Instance of "Second Sight."

One of the psychic marvels chronicled by Vance Thompson in his absorbing article "The Invisible World," in the March Everybody's, came within the author's own experience. He relates:

"Following Lombroso and Maxwell, science admits the reality of the transmission of psychic force. It admits second sight. I knew a Scot who had that power. It was in the Hebrides. He showed me a man walking in the street; dressed in black, a schoolmaster, I think he was. And the Scot told me that the man in black was lying dead awash on a sandy beach. And in twenty-four hours the thing he saw became the true thing; the schoolmaster's body was carried home dead from the seashore; but such things are common in Skye. Second sight, and the telepathy by which personality communicates with personality across infinite space—an old acquisition of the magi—and the clairvoyance that reads the sealed letter or the document hidden in the black heart of an iron safe—these are psychic phenomena licensed now by science."

The Town of Ade (George)

George Ade, who writes his publishers that before long there'll be another book to follow "In Rabel" has had geographical honors conferred upon him. A town, a railroad station and postoffice have been named after him. Future maps of Newton county, Indiana, will show the name of "Ade," six miles north of Kentland, on the Indian Harbor Railroad. George Ade has been putting the fortune his wit has earned him into good, solid American land, and near the location of this new town owns a large and flourishing farm. The name was given to the station by Vice-President Brown, of the New York Central, who is a great admirer of Ade. As soon as he found this town was to be formed near the great humorist's property he issued orders that it should be named after him.

STRANGE ADVICE!

Dr. G. G. Green gives alert personal attention to his great humanitarian contract.

Did our Almanac for many years past we have given unusual advice to those afflicted with coughs, colds, throat or lung troubles or consumption. We have told them if they did not receive any special benefit after the use of one 75-cent size bottle of German Syrup, to consult their doctor. We did not ask them or urge them to use a large number of bottles, as is the case in the advertising of many other remedies. Our confidence in German Syrup makes it possible for us to give such advice. We know by the experience of over 35 years that one 75-cent bottle of German Syrup will speedily relieve or cure the worst coughs, colds, bronchial or lung troubles—and that, even in bad cases of consumption, one large bottle of German Syrup will work wonders. New trial bottles, 25c.; regular size, 75c. At all druggists.
